CLASS NEWS

C. C. Ayer, who for the past thirty-four years has been head of the Department of Romance Languages at the University of Colorado at Boulder, has been made Professor Emeritus.

I. Babbitt has been elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

A. G. Barret's daughter, Ellen Barret Wood, has a daughter, born June 8, 1930.

W. F. Burdett was elected Cashier of the Merchants National Bank, Boston, January 13, 1931.

R. C. Cabot received an honorary degree of LL.D. at the University of Rochester, in June, 1930. He has been made a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, Boston, 1931, and has been elected president of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League. He has been chosen by United States Prohibition Director Woodcock as a member of the Advisory Council of ten to formulate plans for research into the operation of the 18th Amendment in the field of sociology and political economy. Together with Frank B. Kellogg, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, and Miss Grace Abbott, Cabot was awarded a gold medal by the National Institute of Social Sciences, May 7, 1931, for "distinguished services in the field of medicine." He is also President of the National Conference of Social Work. A $25,000 fund has been given to the trustees of the Massachusetts General Hospital to be known as the "Dr. Richard C. Cabot Educational Fund," the income of which is to be devoted to an educational program in hospital social service; the fund was raised by gifts of small sums from doctors and social workers from all over the country and from abroad, and was presented at the close of a three-day celebration in October, 1930, of the 25th Anniversary of the Hospital Social Service, founded by Dr. Cabot.

Walter Coulson died at Salisbury Beach, Mass., June 17, 1930. Coulson was born at Campo Seco, Calif., October 10, 1854, son of Joseph Coulson, of Lawrence, a grocer, and Alice (Sharkey) Coulson. He prepared at the Lawrence High School, entered College in September, 1885, as a special student, and left at the end of Junior year. He studied law at Boston University Law School, and was admitted to the Bar in 1889. From that date to his death, he practiced law at Lawrence, from 1891 to 1902 with Hon. Charles A. DeCourcy (appointed Judge of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts), from 1902 to 1906 with Hon. W. S. Knox, from 1906 to 1909 with D. J. Murphy, and since 1909 by himself and in the firm of Coulson, Donovan and Hargedon. He was for three years president of the Lawrence Bar Association, and served on the committee on judicial appointments of the Massachusetts State Bar Association. He was elected for two terms on the Lawrence School Committee. He was a director in the Lawrence Gas and Electric Company and the Lawrence Trust Company. About twenty years ago, with two associates, he acquired the shore property at Salisbury Beach, title to which had been long in dispute (see 205 Mass. 371); in the profitable development of this property, he spent much time and energy. In the War, he was chairman of the Legal Advisory Board in Lawrence under the Selective Draft Law. In his later years, he spent much time in the South and in travel around the world. As a cheerful and enthusiastic member and worker for the Class, a dependable attendant at all reunions and at Hollis 12, he will be missed. He was married, July 19, 1893, to Anne May Keough of Cambridge, who survives him.

C. B. Davenport was a member of the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection, this past winter. He will be president of the Third International Congress of Eugenics to be held at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, N. Y., August 20-23, 1932. He is serving on a Committee of the National Research Council on Human Heredity.

G. L. DeBlois' daughter, Elizabeth, has received the degree of M. D. from Tufts College.

R. E. N. Dodge, last September, became chairman of the English Department at the University of Wisconsin, in place of H. B. Lathrop, '89, resigned.

R. E. Forbes' daughter, Margaret, was married at Naushon, to Eric Shroeder, September 27, 1930.

W. F. Giese will return to the University of Wisconsin from Switzerland next year and will resume his professorship.

J. L. Goodale's son, Edward, had on the Goodale farm in Ipswich during the summer of 1930, the Byrd dogs of which he (with two other men) was in charge on the South Pole Expedition.

F. Green's wife, Lois Shepherd Green, died December 12, 1930.

C. Greene will travel in France and Germany this summer.

L. S. Griswold is living at 41 Salcombe Street, Dorchester. His son, Henry Milliken, was married to Mildred Bahe in South Easton, Mass., in October, 1930.

V. M. Harding's daughter, Mary Adelaide, was married February 28, 1931, at Chicago, to Albert C. Simonds, of New York; his daughter, Jane, is at the University of London, studying for an M. A. degree in English literature; his son, Victor M., will graduate from Harvard in the Class of '31; his son, Robert C., will enter Phillips Exeter this fall.

E. W. Hawley is conducting a class on parliamentary law, consisting of the Lieutenant Governor and State Senators of Minnesota. He has been appointed as Assistant City Attorney by the City Council of Minneapolis. He will give an address on July 1, at the University of Minnesota, before the Minnesota Congress of Parents' and Teachers' Associations, on parliamentary law.

J. R. Hayes' daughter, Esther Rachel Reed, has a daughter, Shirley Ann, born December 25, 1930.

G. H. Holliday attended the meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs in St. Louis May 14-16, 1931. His daughter, Rebecca D., is curator of the Children's Art Centre in New York City.

A. Holmes was appointed by Governor Allen in 1930 as one of the three members of the new Board of Tax Appeals of Massachusetts.

L. L. Hooper's daughter, Lois Leverett, died August 22, 1930.

M. D. Hull was reelected to Congress from Chicago, November 4, 1930, being one of the survivors from the Democratic tidal wave in Illinois. His wife died in San Francisco on their return from a trip to Honolulu this last May.

L. Hulley reports 12 grandchildren, but J. P. Morgan still holds the '89 record.

George Thomas Keyes died in Boston, Mass., December 17, 1930. He was born at Newbury, Vt., September 7, 1867, son of Henry and Emma Frances (Pierce) Keyes of Boston. After preparing at Nichol's private school in Boston, he entered with the Class and at once became one of its most prominent members. He was captain of the Freshman crew, president of the University Boat Club in his Senior year, one of the Class Marshals at the 250th Anniversary Celebration, a member of the Class Day Committee, a member of many prominent social clubs, as well as of the Freshman and University Glee clubs. After studying for a year in the Harvard Law School, he became connected with the Fairchild Paper Company in 1891 at East Pepperell, Mass. He later became connected with the Nashua River Paper Company at East Pepperell, largely owned by him and his brothers, H. W. Keyes, '87, and C. W. Keyes, '92. In 1906 he was vice president of the American Pulp and Paper Association. In 1910, he retired from the business, and became interested in organ playing and other artistic pursuits. In recent years, he began to take part in politics as a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives from the twelfth Middlesex district, being elected in 1928 and again in 1930; his funeral was attended by a prominent delegation from the House. The Speaker of the House, Hon. Leverett Saltonstall, sends to the Class Secretary the following extract from an address delivered by him at the Memorial Service for Keyes, at Pepperell, Mass., December 28, 1930: "Though an older man, he came to the State Legislature with no conceit or worldliness. He came to learn, to help in the organization of the House and to assist his community and the State where and when he could. Because he was a man of independence of thought and integrity of character, he was chosen for the important Committees on Public Utility questions and on Civil Service. Their decisions on the problems presented to these Committees justified his selection. Always open to suggestion, he was ready to modify his point of view to obtain the best result for all. But once decided, he stuck to his conclusion whether he was in the majority or in the hopeless minority, and so he gained the respect of the members of the House. Never an orator, he accomplished his work in the Committee room—the effective way—but the way that is only known to those who also serve on the Committee. He was renominated and reelected without an opponent in either party. No greater political tribute can be rendered." He was married at Worcester, Mass., June 3, 1902, to Emily Brown Eaton, and had two children, Mary, born August 14, 1905, and George Thomas, Jr., born March 13, 1911, who survive him.

M. A. Kilvert is Executive Vice President of the American Institute of Shipping, Inc., in New York. He retains his legal residence in Florida.

J. G. King has removed his law office to 60 Broadway, New York City.

A. H. Knapp is serving on a Committee of the National Research Council on Human Heredity. He received the honorary degree of D. Sc. from Columbia University June 3, 1930.

F. E. Lane's daughter, Elizabeth (Mrs. Franklin M. Crosby, Jr.), had a daughter, Elizabeth Lane, born February 10, 1931, in Minneapolis, Minn.

*George Dimmick Latimer died at Castine, Me., June 26, 1930. Latimer was born at Penn Yan, N. Y., April 28, 1856, son of John Mills Latimer, a dry goods merchant of Chicago, and Catherine Lurancy (Storey) Latimer. He attended the Harvard Divinity School and then entered the Class in the fall of Senior year. After graduation, he reentered the Divinity School and in March, 1890, he became pastor of the Unity Church in Allston. From 1893 to 1907, he was pastor of the North (Unitarian) Church in Salem. After his retirement in 1907, he went to Europe for several years. Returning to this country, he had no regular parish, but preached frequently, residing at various times in Washington, D. C., Boston, and Brookline, and making frequent trips to Europe. In 1907, he published a volume of sermons entitled Concerning Life. He was married at Boston May 19, 1910, to Grace Gordon Cowing, who survives him.

*Samuel Cony Manley died at Augusta, Me., August 27, 1930. Manley was born at Augusta, July 21, 1867, son of Joseph Homan and Susan (Cony) Manley. He was named for his grandfather, Samuel Cony, who was Governor of Maine in 1864. He prepared for College at Phillips Exeter. He was a member of numerous clubs in College, official scorer for the University Nine, and took honors in history. After graduation, he served until 1899 as clerk, chief clerk to superintendent, and trainmaster on the Maine Central Railroad. From 1899 to 1908, he was interested in the management of newspapers in Portland. Owing to ill-health, he retired from active business in 1908, but he continued to take an active part as director of many corporations, and at various times was president and general manager of the Maine Water Company, a director of the Bath and Brunswick Light and Power Company, Kennebec Light and Heat Company, Maine Central Railroad, Central Maine Power Company, Small Point Water Company, Calais Water Company, and First National Bank of Augusta (now the Granite National Bank), and also a trustee and president of the Augusta Savings Bank, and treasurer of the Maine Farmer Publishing Company. He was greatly interested in politics and served two terms as a member of the Augusta Common Council, one year as president, three terms on the Board of Aldermen of Augusta, one year as president of that body also, and had been a member of the Republican City Committee and of the Superintending School Committee. He was president of the trustees of Cony Female Academy, ex officio member of the Augusta Board of Education, and a trustee of the Lithgow Library. In 1926, he founded the Manley Prize for Improvement in English at Phillips Exeter. Manley never married, and is survived by two sisters. Although a great sufferer for twenty years from an illness which kept him confined largely to his house he retained his cheerful disposition, and a very keen interest in all affairs of the outside world and especially in Class matters. He was a faithful correspondent of the Class Secretary and always had dozens of questions to ask about his classmates. The Portland Press Herald said of him on his death: "Although of a retiring nature and unassuming manner, he was intensely interested in the civic welfare of his city, being particularly active in school affairs and the promotion of hospital facilities. . . . To his intimate friends he was revealed as a man of culture and learning, well versed in the classics and possessing a remarkable grasp of State and National affairs. He never sought public office, but maintained a keen interest in politics, a natural heritage from his father, who at one time was a dominant figure in the political life of Maine and of the Nation and who was closely identified with the public careers of James G. Blaine and other noted men of the State."

G. H. Maynadier was Exchange Professor to Western College this spring. He addressed the Harvard Club of South California at Los Angeles, May 12, 1931.

E. W. McClellan's son, Edward W., Jr., was married, March 14, 1931, to Barbara Wilkinson.

W. L. Monro delivered an address at the Annual Meeting of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce in Hartford, May 1, 1931, on "Tariff Reduction Perils" which has been published in Greater Pittsburgh, Vol. XI, No. 26.

J. P. Morgan received the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law from Oxford University, November 25, 1930. His son, Henry Sturgis, has a fourth son, John Adams, born September 17, 1930.

W. W. Naumburg as a Friend of the Library has made an annual gift for the purchase of books on Shakespeare.

J. P. Nields was appointed United States District Judge in Delaware, in June, 1930.

F. L. Olmstead has been re-elected Registrar of the Society of Colonial Wars of New Jersey.

W. H. Pear has been elected President of the F. E. Weber Charities, Inc. His son, William Wesley, is now the Industrial Engineer of the plant of Lever Bros. Co., Limited, at New Hammond, Ind.

R. F. Perkins spent September and October, 1930, on a hunting trip at Serpentine Lake in New Brunswick with Keyes and Keyes' son.

J. D. Prindle spent the winter in Spain again.

G. A. Reisner's recent work has been summarized for the Class Secretary by the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, as follows: "For three months at the end of 1929, Dr. Reisner was in Boston, giving three courses at Harvard, delivering a series of eight lectures at the Lowell Institute, and two lectures at the Museum of Fine Arts. During the winter of 1929-1930 excavation of the ancient Egyptian fortresses at Semna and on the island of Uronarti, in the region of the second cataract of the Nile in the Sudan, was completed, and in the winter of 1930-31 a third fortress in the series, at Sarraa some distance north of Uronarti, was also excavated. At Giza, near the pyramids, where the permanent camp of the Harvard-Boston Museum of Fine Arts Egyptian Expedition is located, the work of clearing the Royal Cemetery of the family of Cheops was continued during the spring and late autumn of 1930." Reisner wrote the following abstract of his work for the report of the Vice President of the European Division of the Associated Harvard Clubs: "At the Giza Pyramids, from October 3 to November 8, 1929, Lt. Comm. Wheeler and the men were engaged in lifting the stone sarcophagi from nine deep burial shafts. The boxes weighed from 2.7 to 6.3 tons, and the lids from 1 to 4 tons. Great care had to be exercised not to damage these great pieces of craftsmanship of Dynasty IV, and the work had to be done with simple appliances (pulleys and ropes) by hand power. On November 1, 1929, the excavation of the eastern cemetery was resumed with the staff of trained men from Quft and a force of local basket-carriers, directed by Lt. Comm. Wheeler. The work went on systematically, clearing the southeastern edge of the royal cemetery and the adjacent tombs of the priests, until January 20, 1930. The clearing of the large mastabas of Prince Khufuw-anekh and Prince Mindedef finished the excavation of the family cemetery of King Cheops, but left several areas of the cemetery of the priests still to be cleared. Over the whole eastern cemetery, as far as were excavated, is overlaid a cemetery of Egyptians of the Saite-Ptolemaic periods. The tombs consisted of crude-brick mastabas built on a level just under the modern surface of decay, with burial pits descending from the same level through the structures of the Old Kingdom and usually into the bed rock. This cemetery was under the protection of Isis of Pyramids. The old pyramid temple of the queen was enlarged into a temple which extended eastwards over the mastaba of Khufuw-khaf and incidentally protected its chapel from complete destruction. The temple, in which was found the well-known 'Inventory Stela' many years ago, was used in the Saite period as a mortuary temple in which prominent persons constructed their chapels and made their family burial shafts. From here the cemetery spread eastwards during the Persian and Ptolemaic periods. A large number of these later tombs have been excavated and have yielded a great store of Shawwabtī-figures, a large quantity of amulets and beads of blue faience, gold, and semi-precious stone, a certain number of reliefs, a slate statuette of Osiris, and one anthropoid coffin of slate. A characteristic collection of all this material, including the statuette and the anthropoid coffin, are now in Boston.

"At the end of January, the expedition moved to the camp at Semna to complete the excavation of the Middle Kingdom fort on Uronarti (the island of the king). Lt. Comm. Wheeler was in charge and completed the work on the island by March 27, when the expedition returned to Egypt. He found a number of reliefs of Dynasty XVIII, but all of them had lain under water in the Nile and were badly weathered.

"I arrived at the Pyramids on January 7, 1930, returning from Boston. My first task was the examination of the 5,000 mud-seal impressions from Uronarti, most of which were found in 1928-29, but a part also from 1929-30. This labor led to a number of historical deductions which have been outlined in Bulletin No. 167 of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and more scientifically set forth in a long article for the Zeitschrift für Ägyptische Sprache. Alongside this work I was occupied in reading the proofs of the first volume of the final report on the Giza excavations. The brunt of the latter work was borne by Mr. Dunham. I also wrote a series of four articles on the inscriptions found by us at Gebel Barkal (Napata) for the Aeg. Zeitschrift, the first of which will appear in the next number. For the Hearst Expedition, I arranged to have the third volume of the report on Naga-'d-Der printed, and made a final re-reading of the manuscript for typing errors.

"Mr. Joseph Lindon Smith, the Honorary Curator of the Egyptian Department and Painter Extraordinary to the expedition, arrived at the Giza Pyramids on January 17, 1930, and remained working until March. He painted six pictures of the immovable monuments at Giza and Semna-Uronarti where he stayed eighteen days. These pictures have taken their place in the unique record of Egyptian art so wonderfully made for us by this artist."

J. H. Ropes gave a course of Lowell Lectures in King's Chapel, Boston, in April-May, on the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John.

C. M. Saville has been made Manager and Chief Engineer of the Water Bureau of the Metropolitan District, which includes Hartford and six other municipal subdivisions; additional water supply works of $10,000,000 for the District having been authorized by the Connecticut Legislature.

William Sherman Scott died at Woodmere, L. I., N. Y., August 14, 1930. Scott was born in New York, September 1, 1867, son of John Frederic Scott, coffee broker, and Emily Augusta (Willis) Scott. After preparing under Duane S. Emerson in New York, he entered with the Class as a Freshman and left at the end of Sophomore year. He was a member of the Freshman football team. After leaving College, he engaged in business in New York as a coffee importer, in the firm of William Scott and Sons, founded by his grandfather. Later he became a member of the New York Stock Exchange, and in recent years retired from business. In June, 1917, he went to France in connection with hospital supply work. He was married at New York to Mrs. Katherine Patterson Salisbury, January 18, 1910, who died shortly thereafter. In 1927, he was married to Borghild Riegel, of New York, who survives him.

P. S. Sears statue entitled "Lafayette, We are here!" has been purchased by the Town of Manchester as its War Memorial, and will be unveiled July 4, 1931; another statue by him, "Indian Shooting at the Stars" will be unveiled before the American Indian Museum at Harvard, Mass., on June 12. The latter statue was exhibited at the Royal Academy in London, in May, 1931. His bust of Percy Haughton has been presented by Haughton's sister to the Varsity Club.

W. H. Siebert had an article on "A Quaker Section of the Underground Railroad in Northern Ohio" in the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Quarterly for July, 1930; an article, entitled "Some Church History of St. Augustine during the Spanish Regime," was in the Florida Historical Society Quarterly for October, 1930; and an article entitled "The Loyalist Troops of New England," in New England Quarterly for January 1931.

H. D. Sleeper has had published by the Boston Music Co., an anthem entitled "I Love the Lord," and his Part Song for Women's Voices entitled "Come Down to Kew" has been re-issued by the same company. Another anthem, soon to be published by Schirmer, "Larghetto," for full orchestra was played by the Rochester Civic Orchestra this spring.

L. F. Snow is president of Tennessee Oratorical League and vice president of the Philological Association.

S. W. Sturm's daughter, Helen A., was married in Paris, in October, 1930, to Jean M. Huret.

M. A. Taylor's daughter, Laura, was married Oct. 6, 1928, to Robert Foster Whitmer, Jr. (Yale '22) of Philadelphia, and has a son, Robert Foster, 3d, born in New York City, July 14, 1929; his son, Martin Allison, Jr., was married to Margaret Brown Hostetter, in New York, Dec. 21, 1929; his daughter, Harriet Talbot (Pitman) was married to Huntington Wolcott Frothingham (Harv. '15) on July 4, 1929, in Haverhill.

C. M. Thayer's daughter, Constance, is a student in Smith College.

W. H. Thayer's daughter, Nancy, was married to Lawrence Batchelder, Nov. 23, 1929.

P. D. Trafford is now living in Newtown, Conn.

R. DeC. Ward is retiring, this June, as Chairman of the Board of Freshman Advisers (which post, Ward has filled for six years with brilliant success, as the Class Secretary is informed by another member of the Class), and his place will be taken by the new Dean of Freshmen, though Ward will be one of the new "Associates" of the Freshman Year. His son, Henry DeCourcy, was married, June 10, 1931, at St. Paul, Minn., to Janet Cameron Clarke. Ward has published, this last year, "The Literature of Climatology," in Annals Assoc. Amer. Geographers, and an article by him on "The Acclimatization of the White Race in the Tropics" will appear in the Annual Report of the Smithsonian Institution for 1930; and an article on "The Railroads versus the Weather" will appear in the Proc. Amer. Phil. Soc.

C. Warren's Report as Special Master of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of United States v. The State of Utah, was affirmed in a decision of the Court rendered, April 13, 1931, by Chief Justice Hughes. His new book, entitled Jacobin and Junto or Early American Politics as Seen in the Diary of Dr. Nathaniel Ames, 1758-1822, is to be published by the the Harvard University Press, this summer. He is a member of the Committees appointed by the Board of Overseers to visit the Departments of Government and of History.

W. H. Warren's daughter, Priscilla Warren Laemker, has a daughter, Katharine Warren, born in Atlanta, Ga., May 30, 1930; his daughter, Katharine Warren Sutherland, has a daughter, Carol Warren, born, Nov. 7, 1929, in Fond du Lac, Wisc., and a daughter, Sylvia Warren, born, March 15, 1931; his daughter Juliet Sargeant, was married to Elmer Otto Tetzlaff, at Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 29, 1930.

Franklin Oliver Watson died at Somerville, Mass., January 13, 1931. He was born at Somerville, September 29, 1865, son of Simon Noble and Sarah (Stone) Watson. After preparing at Somerville High School, he entered with the Class, but left at the end of Sophomore year. From 1890 to 1892, he was an assistant ticket agent on the Chicago, St. Paul and Kansas City, R. R., at Minneapolis, Minnesota. From 1892 to his death, he was connected with York & Whitney Company in the wholesale fruit and produce commission business in Boston, serving as director, as treasurer, and as vice president. He was for many years secretary, treasurer and director of De Soto Fruit Company of Arcadia, Fla. engaged in the production and distribution of fruit at Boston. He was one of the organizers of the Boston Market Credit Company and was one of its directors for many years. He was also one of the founders and directors of the Boston Market Terminal Company, a corporation which transferred the wholesale carload lot fruit and produce business from the Faneuil Hall Market district to the yards in South Boston. He married Sara Albertie Tuttle, daughter of Varnum Tuttle, on February 2, 1891, at Acton, Mass., who survives him.

B. C. Weld's daughter, Frances Stevenson, has a son, Robert W. Emmons, Jr.

G. F. Weld has been made a trustee of the Church Divinity School of the Pacific.

E. L. Wengren's son, Richard, is Yale '34; his daughter, Margaret, is to be a teacher in the Foote School, New Haven, this next year.

*George E. Wright's daughter, Mrs. T. R. Conway, of Portland, Oregon, had an article in The Mountaineer for December, 1930 (Vol. XXIII) entitled "In the Shadow of the Mountain," which contained a photograph of the bronze tablet placed on the top of Aurora Peak of Mount Rainier in memory of Wright, with the following inscription: "George E. Wright, 1867-1923, Citizen-Mountaineer-Friend. Climbed here on his last visit to the Hills. This Memorial Placed by the Mountaineers 1924."
